

Boston Business Leader David Greaney Joins the Restaurant Investment Group's Board of Advisors

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Boston, May 26, 2015 – The Restaurant Investment Group announced today that David Greaney, President of Synergy Investments, has joined RIG's Board of Advisors, alongside co-owner Nancy Cushman, restaurant consultant David Hadden, and beverage industry veteran Tom First.

The Board was created to evaluate chef-applicants and their plans for restaurant funding.

Greaney, a certified public accountant by training, is a leader in the Boston real estate and business community. Founded by Greaney in 2003, Synergy Investments today is one of the largest downtown commercial landlords. Synergy owns and operates 31 Boston area properties, with over 3,500,000 square feet of office and retail space, mostly in Boston's Downtown and Seaport neighborhoods.

Greaney serves as a board member of the Massachusetts chapter of the real estate industry group NAIOP, the Boston Business Improvement District, and Downtown North Association.

"Joining RIG's Board of Advisors offers the opportunity to work with a dynamic management team, an experienced board and some of the area's most talented chefs," said Greaney. "Sustainable business plans and practices are as important as creative menus and concepts in the increasingly innovative restaurant world, and I look forward to participating in this exciting venture."

Greaney has experience owning and operating several Boston-area restaurants, including the well-received Bostonia Public House, located at 131 State St., which opened in 2014. Dan Dain, co-founder of RIG and president of the Boston law firm Dain, Torpy, Le Ray, Wiest & Garner, P.C., said "Dave's experience in the financial, commercial real estate, and restaurant industries makes him exceptionally well-suited to serve on RIG's Board of Advisors. We are very pleased that he is joining us in this endeavor."

About The Restaurant Investment Group

The Restaurant Investment Group provides diversified investment opportunities to investors interested in new, independent restaurant concepts owned by up-and-coming chefs. Today, the Greater Boston community desires independently owned restaurants operated by the next generation of chefs supplying diners with inspired and novel concepts and menus. However, industry realities make it hard for new chef-owners to raise the funds and find the expertise, service-providers, and space necessary to open and run such restaurants. The Restaurant Investment Group provides selected chef-owners with initial equity, approved service providers, and a Board of Advisors. Restaurant investors, investing in the Fund, no longer have to seek out opportunities through an ad-hoc process. Instead, they now can invest in a diversified Fund, with the knowledge that chef-owners are receiving oversight and a suite of known service providers from the initial concept through build out, opening, and continuing during regular operations.
